

KATE JACOBS KNIT THE SEASON

PLAYAWAY®

Spanning the season from Thanksgiving through New Year's Eve, Knit the Season follows the now college-aged Dakota Walker as she takes a much-needed break to visit her Gran in Scotland for the holidays. Dakota is at a crossroads in her life, as everything seems to be changing all at once. While she is working hard to build her future career, the members of her family and her "extended family"—the Friday Night Knitting Club—are all following new dreams that take them in different directions. As Dakota struggles to become a fully independent adult, she draws strength from stories about her late mother, Georgia, at her own life's crossroads. Through the rich collection of memories shared by her friends and family, we see the full circle of Georgia's life—as a child, a teen, a young woman in love, and a doting new mother—as well as the web of people she touched.

Kate Jacobs is a writer and former magazine editor who has worked for Redbook, Working Woman, and Family Life, among other publications. She divides her time between New York and Los Angeles.
