“Aby marshaling a considerable amount of research, Jordan fashions a truly compelling narrative of three outsized American military figures. A masterly, exciting study of character and tactics in World War II.”—Kirkus Reviews

Supreme Allied Commander Dwight D. Eisenhower, General George S. Patton, and General Omar N. Bradley engineered the Allied conquest that shattered Hitler’s hold over Europe. But they also shared an intricate web of relationships going back decades. In the cauldron of World War II, they found their prewar friendships complicated by shifting allegiances, jealousy, insecurity, patriotism, and ambition.

Meticulously researched and vividly written, this book recounts the battle for Europe through the eyes of these three legendary generals. Their bonds are explored, and readers are treated to an inside view of life at the summit of raw, violent power. Drawn from the candid accounts of its main characters and those around them, this eye-opening narrative is sure to become a classic of military history.
