

THE LAST WARRIOR

ANDREW KREPINEVICH
AND BARRY WATTS

READ BY MALCOLM HILLGARTNER

Andrew Marshall is a defense industry legend. Director of the Office of Net Assessment, the Pentagon's internal think tank, Marshall has served in the Department of Defense for nearly forty years. From his groundbreaking work at Rand Corporation in the 1950s to his innovative strategies for dealing with nonstate actors and rising foreign powers at the dawn of the twenty-first century, Marshall has helped the United States meet the threats to its national security during the Cold War and beyond.

In The Last Warrior, Andrew Krepinevich and Barry Watts tell his story for the first time, using his exceptional career to trace the rise of the modern American defense establishment.

"Fascinating...The Last Warrior outlines much of the intellectual history of American security since World War II, while also shining a light on the challenges we continue to face."

-Mac Thornberry, member of congress

ANDREW KREPINEVICH is the president of the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments and the author of 7 Deadly Scenarios, which was adopted by Secretary of Defense Robert Gates for use in Pentagon planning, and The Army and Vietnam, which is considered one of the seminal works on the Vietnam War and counterinsurgency warfare.

BARRY WATTS is a senior fellow at the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments.
