THE ALL-IN-ONE AUDIOBOOK

Chika Jeune was born three days before the earthquake that decimated Haiti in 2010. She spent her infancy in a landscape of extreme poverty. When her mother dies, Chika is admitted to the Have Faith Haiti Orphanage, which Albom operates in Port-au-Prince. The nearly fifty children who live, play, and go to school there have become family to Mitch and his wife, Janine, who have no children of their own.

Chika's arrival makes a quick impression. Brave and self-assured, even as a toddler, she delights the other kids and teachers. Then, at age five, Chika is diagnosed with a life-threatening illness, and a doctor tells Albom, "There is no one in Haiti who can help her."

Mitch and Janine bring Chika to Detroit, hopeful that American medical care will soon grant her a healthy return to her homeland. Instead, Chika becomes a permanent part of the Alboms' lives, as they embark on a two-year, around-the-world journey to find a cure. As Chika's boundless optimism and humor teach Mitch and Janine the joys of caring for a child, they learn that a relationship built on love, no matter what blows it takes, can never be lost.

Beautifully written and simply told, Finding Chika is Mitch Albom at his most vulnerable and enlightening. It's a celebration of children and how they change our lives—and a remarkable portrait of what it means to be a family, regardless of how it is made.

Mitch Albom is a bestselling author, screenwriter, playwright, and nationally syndicated columnist. He has written seven number one New York Times bestsellers, and his books have collectively sold more than forty million copies in forty-seven languages worldwide. Tuesdays with Morrie, which spent four straight years atop the New York Times bestseller list, is now the bestselling memoir of all time. Albom has founded nine charities in his hometown of Detroit, and since 2010 has operated the Have Faith Haiti Orphanage in Port-au-Prince. Albom lives with his wife, Janine, in Michigan.
