Cambodian Girls
SAMANTHA ABRIGO & AMY SARA LIM

American expatriate Sidney Webb and Sister Margaret, his British colleague, work tirelessly to rehabilitate Cambodian children from the nightmare of prostitution. After a surprise raid on a brothel, an eager young U.S. lawyer places three liberated orphans under Sidney and the Sister's care. The girls (played by young women in the performance) begin the inspirational process of recovery under the loving watch of their new protectors. An excitingly original script by an emerging American playwright. Includes an interview with playwright Julie Marie Myatt.

Producing Director:
Susan Albert Loewenberg

Directed by: Michael Bigelow Dixon
