

God, the Science, the Evidence is the result of nearly four years of research involving over twenty scientists and renowned specialists. It presents the most up-to-date evidence for the existence of God.

For more than four centuries, the combined discoveries of Copernicus, Galileo, Darwin, Freud, and others, created the illusion that the Universe could be explained without a creator God. As a result, materialism became the dominant worldview by the beginning of the twentieth century.

Yet, with unexpected and astonishing force, the pendulum of science has swung back in the opposite direction. Driven by a rapid succession of groundbreaking discoveries—thermodynamics, the theory of relativity, quantum mechanics, the Big Bang, theories about the expansion and fine-tuning of the Universe, and the incredible complexity of living organisms—old certainties have been completely overturned. Materialism increasingly has the appearance of an irrational belief.

The authors trace the fascinating history of those key scientific breakthroughs while also exploring what philosophy, morality, history, and some of humanity's great enigmas have to say on the matter.

This book is accessible and thoroughly researched, providing a compelling exploration of the latest evidence for the existence of God.

God, the Science, the Evidence will surprise many listeners. For centuries, belief in God was relegated to the realm of superstition. Yet, reason has come full circle. Science is now God's ally.
