

“THEY’RE COMING TO GET YOU, BARBARA.”

The classic film that changed cinema by redefining horror and zombies forever. George A. Romero’s hit movie is novelized by John A. Russo, the co-screenwriter of the beloved flick. With an introduction from Romero and an all-new foreword from Simon Pegg (Shaun of the Dead, Mission Impossible).

A ragtag group of Pennsylvanians barricade themselves in an old farmhouse to remain safe from a horde of flesh-eating ghouls that are ravaging the eastern United States as the unburied dead return to life and seek human victims.

JOHN A. RUSSO co-wrote the screenplay to the horror classic Night of the Living Dead, which he subsequently adapted into a novelization. He also co-wrote the original screenplay to the film’s sequel, Return of the Living Dead, which he then novelized in 1978 and was later adapted and re-written by director Dan O’Bannon as a feature film in 1985. With forty books published internationally and nineteen feature-length movies to his credit, John Russo has worked as a writer, producer, director and actor in the film industry for more than five decades.

GEORGE A. ROMERO (1940–2017) was an iconic filmmaker, writer, and editor. His most famous accomplishment is the creation of what we now know as “zombies” via his films Night of the Living Dead, Dawn of the Dead, and Day of the Dead.

KEVIN KENERLY, an Earphones Award–winning narrator, earned a BA at Olivet College. A longtime member of the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, he has acted in more than twenty seasons, playing dozens of roles.
