

When faced with a loved one's serious illness, many families find themselves overwhelmed, uncertain, and afraid. Here, hospice nurse and educator Maureen Groden, RN, offers a sympathetic guide into one of life's most challenging passages.

Groden shares true stories of families navigating the final chapter of a loved one's life to explain the emotions, decisions, and realizations that emerge during the dying process. Listeners meet families like their own—grappling with fear, love, sorrow, and strength—and learn how the healthcare system works when a family member is seriously ill, what decisions they may need to make, and how to care for their loved one. Groden provides clarity and comfort while explaining symptom management, hospice services, and the subtle, poignant ways that families and loved ones can say goodbye.

MAUREEN GRODEN, RN, is a hospice nurse and educator.
