

Sadie, Collin and Jonathan have been best friends since childhood. Sadie's the bleeding heart, always seeking a cause. Collin's the comedic peacemaker of the trio. And Jonathan's the protector of them all.

The summer before their senior year of high school, Sadie and Jonathan finally admit to having feelings for each other, putting their lifelong friendship at risk.

Jonathan's notorious for getting into fights, a reputation Sadie's chosen to ignore. Collin's always been the one to smooth things over and de-escalate Jonathan's rage.

After witnessing a dispute she wasn't meant to see, Sadie suspects there's more to the cuts and bruises than Jonathan's troublemaker reputation. Maybe she doesn't know him as well as she thought. And this time, Collin's words can't twist what she saw with her own eyes.

All Jonathan wants is to be believed. To be known as something other than the monster he's been labeled. There's one person in his life who wants to see the truth, even his darker side. Except believing him may cost Sadie everyone she loves, including Jonathan.
